TERRIFIC HURRICANE.

Appalling Loss of Life in Many Texas Towns—Galveston Devastated.

The destruction of railroads and of telegraph wires has made it impossible to gather the full extent of the damage done by Saturday night's storm along the coast of Texas, but enough is known to reveal an appalling disaster involving the loss of hundreds and perhaps thousands of lives. Galveston was still inundated and cut off from direct communication and news comes of the almost general destruction of the city. A correspondent who left early Sunday morning places the loss of life at from 600 to 1,000. One man who left Galveston after the storm says the whole city was inundated, and that one thousand people were killed, drowned, or missing. A relief train from Houston could get no nearer than six miles of Virginia Point, where the prairie was covered with bodies and wreckage, two hundred dead bodies being counted from the train. Many vessels were blown high and dry and wrecked, indicating a tidal wave. Besides Galveston, Sabine Pass, Port Arthur, Brazos and other points are shut off from communication. From other points in Texas come reports of loss of life as follows: Chenango 9, Brookshire 4, Seabrook 4, Morgan's Point 3, Houston 1, Alvin 1, Texas City 6, Oyster Creek 6, Angleton 3, Arcola 1, Brazoria 6. From nearly all these points come reports of many others injured or missing. The damage to crops was everywhere great and beyond estimation at the present time. Gov. Sayres estimates the total loss of life by the storm at three thousand.

HOUSTON, TEX., Sept. 9.

The storm that raged along the coast of Texas last night was the most disastrous that has ever visited this section. The wires are down and there is no way of finding out just what has happened, but enough is known to make it certain that there has been great loss of life and destruction of property all along the coast and for a hundred miles inland. Every town that is reached reports one or more dead, and the property damage is so great that there is no way of computing it accurately.

One of the refugees who came in on the relief train, who had a sad experience, was S. W. Clinton, an engineer at the fertilizing plant at the Galveston stock yards. Mr. Clinton's family consisted of his wife and six children. When his house was washed away he managed to get two of his little boys safely to a raft, and with them he drifted helplessly about. His raft collided with wreckage of every description, and was split in two and he was forced to witness the drowning of his sons, being unable to help them in any way. Mr. Clinton states that parts of the city are a seething mass of water.

Mr. Jennings, a slater by trade, who resides at Thirty-eight street and Avenue M 4, got to the mainland in about the same manner as Clinton. After losing his wife he set out, and by swimming and drifting around, reaching the mainland.

William Smith, a young boy about eighteen years old, whose home is in West Texas, had a narrow escape. Young Smith was blown off the docks and came ashore in the driftwood. Despite the difficulty he experienced in keeping afloat, he held out to the end and reached the shore safe and sound.

A. England and his wife, of Texas City, who were on the train, reported that the whole of that town is blown away and that a number of lives were lost. There were six women known to Mr. England who were drowned, and he was convinced that there were many others who had lost their lives.

Mr. Joyce, another refugee from Galveston, makes the following statement: "The wind was blowing Saturday afternoon and night at about seventy-five miles an hour, blowing the water in the Gulf and completely covering the city. The people of Galveston did not think it was much at first, and kept within their homes; consequently, when the wind began blowing as it did, and the water dashed against the houses, completely demolishing them, many lives were lost. I have no idea how many lives were lost, but think there will be several thousand deaths reported, besides many people whom we will know nothing about."

"I was in the storm which struck Galveston in 1875, but that one, bad as it was, was nothing in comparison with Saturday's. It will be hard to tell how much damage was done in the city, but it will be something terrible. The Gulf and bay are full of wreckage of every description, and it seems as if every frame house in the town must have been blown down and knocked to pieces."

judging from the amount of driftwood that is floating about.

I am going back to Galveston just as soon as I can find my sister's body and that of her children."

LATER—Galveston is still cut off from direct communication, but enough is known to justify the statement that the number of dead is fifteen hundred. The number may be even greater. The city is practically a ruin. A grave danger confronts the survivors. The water supply is cut off and the hundreds of unburied corpses may breed pestilence. The nation has been appealed to for relief and the response by the Government and by individuals has been prompt. Relief trains are carrying water to Houston, and the War Department has ordered the distribution of 50,000 rations and 10,000 tents.

Do you know that you can buy a 15-pay life in the Etna for less money than a 30-pay in most other old line companies? Besides, they pay you a cash dividend every year to reduce your payments. D. J. DUNCAN, Dist. Mgr., Greenville, Ky.
